

Continuing His Studies While Serving in Operation Iraqi Freedom: William Dunker

William Dunker, a Criminology major at the University of South Florida's College of Behavioral & Community Sciences, is a paralegal for the National Guard (regular Army while deployed), and has worked in the military justice department of JAG, He is currently working as the paralegal for Legal Assistance/Client Services, assisting soldiers with civil matters.

Dunker currently takes all of my courses online because he is deployed in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom with the Florida Army National Guard as a paralegal. He plans to graduate USF in May 2011 and attend law school at Stetson Law School. He is a member of several school clubs, including the Student Veterans Association and the Pre-Law Society.
